(A) Sometimes the real world can be a confusing place. It is not always fair or kind. And in the real world there are not always happy endings. That is why we like to escape into the world of fantasy—a place ____ (41) ____ things always go our way and there is always a happy ending.

We want to believe in fantastic creatures in imaginary lands. We want to believe in magic powers, good friends, and the power of good to overcome evil. We all fantasize about being able to fly and lift buildings off the ground, and ____ (42) ____ good a magic sword would feel in our hand as we go off to kill a dragon or win the hand of a beautiful princess.

The amazing adventures of Superman, Peter Pan, and Harry Potter have charmed many people, children and adults ____ (43) _____. The main reason is ____ (44) ____ these stories offer us chances to get away from this real, frustrating world and allow us to find some magical solutions to our problems. For example, Superman always arrives in the nick of time to stop a disaster from happening, Peter Pan can fly at will to tease the bad guy Captain Hook, and Harry Potter has his magic power to take revenge on his uncle, aunt and cousin, ____ (45) ____ always ill-treat him.

(B) There are three branches of medicine. One is called “doctor medicine,” or “scientific medicine.” Scientific doctors try to observe sicknesses, look for logical patterns, and then find out how the human body works. From there they figure out ____ (46) ____ treatments may work. This kind of medicine is believed to date from the 4th century BC. Nowadays it is successful; ____ (47) _____, in the ancient world this approach probably did not cure many patients.

A second kind of medicine is called “natural cures,” or “folk medicine,” in which less educated people try to cure sicknesses with various herbs. These folk healers also use observation and logic, but they are not so aware of it. They try things ____ (48) ____ they find something that seems to work, and then they keep doing that. Folk medicine flourished long before the development of scientific medicine and was more successful in ancient times ____ (49) ____ doctor medicine.

The third kind is called “health spas,” or “faith healing.” Sometimes this may be as simple as touching the holy man and being immediately healed. Other times, a magician may make you a magic charm, or say a spell, to cure you. Some religious groups organize special healing shrines for the sick. In these places people rest, get plenty of sleep, eat healthy food, drink water instead of wine, and exercise in various ways. They also talk to the priests and pray to the gods. Going to these places may be just the right thing to make you feel better ____ (50) ____ you are feeling depressed or you have been working too hard.

四、篇章結構(10%)

說明：第 51 至 55 題，每題一個空格。請依文意在文章後所提供的(A) 到(E) 選項中分別選出最適當者，使篇章結構 清晰有條理，並將其英文字母代號標示在答案卡之「選擇題答案區」。每題答對得 2 分，答錯不倒扣。

| (A) We like to watch them in action. |
| (B) The writer’s hand is always behind the story. |
| (C) A good writer can tell us many truths about life. |
| (D) A story is not like a biography, a factual record of an actual person’s life. |
| (E) Short stories can be like windows on the world, if we will but sit by them and give our attention entirely to what they show. |

We like to read short stories because we like to know people. _____(51)_____ We want to know what they do and say to each other, how life treats them, and how they try to turn events to their own purposes. When reading short stories, we learn to recognize the clever ways in which a story is created. _____(52)_____ Yet a story can seem more realistic and believable than fact. _____(53)_____ Moreover, a piece of fiction can call upon the free play of the author’s imagination, and hold our interest with suspense or humor. _____(54)_____ Arranging events, causing things to happen and beckoning the reader on to the end are what the writer is always trying to do . Of course, the people in stories are not “real” in the ordinary sense of the word. This is the great reward that short stories will offer us—taking us into different places, introducing us to new and different kinds of people, facing us with different but “real” problems that we have never met before. _____(55)_____

五、閱讀測驗(10%)

(A) Although our body temperature varies from one moment to the next throughout one day, our normal temperature should hover near 37 degrees Celsius. When the temperature of our body passes the 37.5 degrees Celsius mark, we have a fever. We naturally associate fever with being bed-ridden and having sore joints and chills. In short, we think of fever as an illness. But actually, it isn’t. Fever is usually the signal of sickness. Anything from an ear infection to cancer can cause our temperature to climb. This is because whenever bacteria or viruses invade the body, it uses heat to kill them off, resulting in the high temperature. Fever also makes the body’s immune system work more productively: once body heat rises, more white blood cells and antibodies are released. Fever is therefore a defense mechanism.

What should we do when we have a fever? The best things we can do when fever strikes are to take a lukewarm bath, increase the intake of liquids, and get a complete rest. Remember: fever is a way that body uses to warn us of bacteria or viruses invasion. However, if the condition does not get better, consulting a doctor might be the best solution.

56. It can be inferred from the article that _____.
- (A) fever only causes headaches
- (B) If fever happens, never go to a doctor

- (C) most cases of fever result in cancer
- (D) fever brings discomfort, but it's a defense mechanism

57. According to the passage, which of the following statements is TRUE?

- (A) Fever is an illness.
- (B) A fever makes the body's immune system work better.
- (C) Once body heat rises, bacteria or viruses invade the body.
- (D) When fever strikes, it's a good idea to take a hot bath and rest.

58-60 為題組

(B) Floods and droughts are among the world's most serious natural disasters in terms of economic losses and human deaths. Droughts are even worse. They can last for many years and result in even greater economic suffering and loss of human life. Floods and droughts seem to have very different causes: too much water in the case of floods, and too little in the case of droughts. In fact, though, the origin of these disasters is often the same.

Environmentalists agree that man's poor use of the land often increases the chance of droughts and floods. For example, slash-and-burning farming, where the forest is removed to grow crops, degrades the land. With the loss of trees and other native plants, the soil becomes compacted and nutrients washed away, creating poor soil. Poor soil and soil covered with buildings or asphalt are not able to keep valuable water; as a result, during the long period of dry times, the land becomes dry. Crops wither and die. Then, when a storm brings heavy rainfall, the rivers and lakes overflow and the water lies in floods on top of the dry earth.

So, while nature is the force behind heavy rainfalls or long dry periods, humans and our actions are often the cause of floods and droughts. It seems that water and land management is important if we are to lessen the occurrence of floods and droughts.

58. The passage is most likely to be taken from _____ magazine.

- (A) Money
- (B) Traveler
- (C) Economist
- (D) National Geographic

59. According to the passage, the reason for floods and droughts is _____.

- (A) poor soil
- (B) economic losses
- (C) the power of nature
- (D) improper use of the land

60. Which of the following statements is TRUE?

- (A) Droughts lead to the overflow of rivers and lakes.
- (B) It is human errors that make floods and droughts more serious.
- (C) Water and land management will never lessen the damage caused by floods.
- (D) Slash-and-burn farming degrades the land, but we can make it rich again by growing crops on it.
